Braun win delights Republican leader

Democrats and Republicans said they were shocked by the defeat of Democratic U.S. Sen. Alan Dixon, a top Madison County Republican said his party was "upset" by it.

Carol Moseley Braun upended Dixon's previously undefeated 43-year political career, despite being overwhelmingly outspent by Dixon and a third opponent.

Madison County GOP Chairman Dr. Ed Ragsdale Wednesday sounded almost as jubilant as Braun.

"I was shocked, but this bodes very well for the Republican Party. We couldn't have asked for a better outcome," Ragsdale said. Braun will face Richard Williamson, a Chicago lawyer, in November.

Braun crushed the incumbent in the state's most populous county Tuesday and offset his traditional strength downtown.

"In this democracy, it's how many votes you got, not how much money you have," a beaming Braun, Chicago's WLS-TV Wednesday morning.

Madison County Board Chairman Nelson Hagnauer, D-Granite City, said he was very surprised by Braun's win.

Committee proposes new legislative map

By Bob Slaten
Staff writer

The game of Granite City politics, where allegiances have been known to change almost as frequently as the players change clothes, is about to take another turn.

The Council's Legal and Legislative Committee proposed a new ward boundary map Wednesday night which would pit incumbent Alderman Emerald against one another in the 1993 and 1995 elections, and force some aldermen to run in areas where they have never campaigned.

But many residents would find themselves with a new alderman.

But the advantages of the new map outweigh the political disadvantages, said committee chairman Dan Brown, who would find himself in new territory.

"We approached (redistricting) with three goals in mind," Brown said. "Districts must be roughly equal in population, they must be contiguous, and we cannot split precincts if we can avoid it." One thing we didn't consider is where incumbents live.

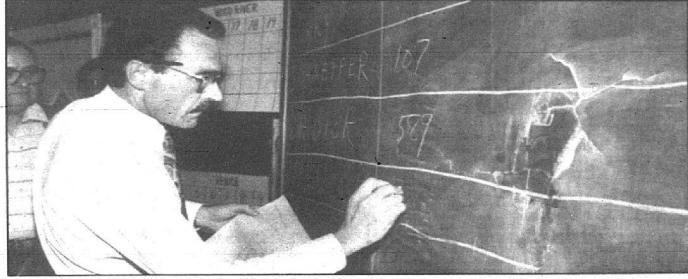

Dan Brown

"If this is going to be decided in court, we have to be able to prove those criteria," Brown said.

Former 7th Ward Alderman Emerald Dawes said last year he would file suit

The luck of the Irish was with Matt Melucci on Tuesday night.

Amid a happy crowd of supporters and plenty of corned beef and cabbage, Melucci graciously claimed victory in the Madison County Democratic circuit clerk race.

The Collinsville resident won the nomination with 17,266 votes. Melucci's main opponent, Don Bridick, received 11,146 votes while Fred Perry finished third with 3,205 votes and Max Shaffer ended with 2,903 votes.

Melucci and his supporters and volunteers kept watch Tuesday night at the Pontoon Beach Lions Club.

Despite everyone's positive attitude regarding Melucci's chance at winning, the candidate eagerly paced the floor, waiting for the first of the results.

Don Bridick writes in 9:30 p.m. With less than the totals early in the 20 of the 224 precincts ready Tuesday night.

Prosecutors using case to toughen DUI charges

Madison County prosecutors will get a second chance at setting a statewide drunken driving precedent.

The State's Attorney's Office has an appellate court's OK to refile a felony drunken driving charge against an Alton man prosecutors described as a "habitual DUI offender."

This is the first case on this point in the state. Madison County State's Attorney William Haine said:

The ruling will make it easier for prosecutors to get harsher sentences for drunken drivers and habitual child abusers, sex offenders and shoplifters, he said.

The 5th District Appellate Court on March 11 rejected a Madison County judge's order that dismissed a felony driving under the influence charge against Charles Harrison III.

Man arrested for alleged abuse of infant

A 48-year-old Granite City man faces a felony charge of aggravated criminal sexual abuse involving a six-month-old boy.

John Messaros, of the 2300 block of O'Hare Avenue, was arrested Monday at 10:30 p.m. on an alleged Sept. 1, 1991, incident, according to Granite City Police Department reports. He was released after posting $5,000 bail on a $50,000 bond.

Police officials obtained a warrant from the Madison County State's Attorney's Office on Friday.

Messaros allegedly implicated himself during a civil court hearing earlier this week in Madison County police.

A preliminary hearing is expected to be held Friday, March 27, officials said.

The appellate court sent the case back for prosecution.

Harrison was charged with a felony after two previous DUI convictions.

Haine has two separate misdemeanor drunken driving convictions from 1986 in Madison County. For the third alleged offense, he was indicted by a grand jury on a felony DUI charge after Alton police arrested him in July 1990.

According to state statutes, prosecutors can file a felony charge if a suspect has two prior convictions.

Associate Judge Michael Meehan ruled the felony charge was inappropriate because Harrison pleaded guilty to the previous charges on the same day, constituting one conviction instead of two.

"I did not agree with that," Haine said. "I felt the court was too narrowly construing the DUI statute."

Haine said he believes defense lawyers often pair guilty pleas on misdemeanor charges to avoid the more serious felony charge. "I don't know, but I feel that happened in the Harrison case," he said.

Prosecutors had sought the grand jury indictment so that Meehan's ruling could be appealed to the appellate court in Mount Vernon.

The appellate court case will serve as a statewide precedent, absent any other case law, Haine said.

It would apply to several types of misdemeanor offenses which can be tried as felonies after prior guilty pleas.

"This is a pretty good trend," Haine said. "It's an important case."

Madison County Public Defender John Rekowski, whose office represented Harrison, disagreed with Haine.

"We felt Judge Meehan's ruling on the statute was correct," he said. "We're disappointed."

THE LAW AND YOU

By RICK REED
Attorney At Law

Often questions arise regarding the difference between a joint tenancy in real estate and a tenancy in common. Let us first compare the way these two different interests in land are created. To create a joint tenancy, a deed would read, "Smith and Edwards, joint tenants as joint tenants and not as tenants in common." Unless there is specific language in the deed creating a joint tenancy, the interest in land would be considered as a tenancy in common. The following examples will demonstrate that these two tenancies do create far different rights upon the death of the first landowner.

The major difference between joint tenancy and a tenancy in common is that the joint tenancy includes survivorship. When the first joint tenant dies, the surviving joint tenant takes the entire estate of the deceased. Therefore, in our above example involving Smith and Jones, if Smith died first, Jones would get his interest in the property. Since Jones survived by a wife and children, in this case, Smith's family would inherit nothing from his interest in the land, even if Smith left a will leaving all his property to his wife and children.

If Smith and Jones held the property as tenants in common, however, when Smith died first, his interest would pass under the will to his wife and children. In this case, even if he died without a will, his one-half interest would go to his wife and one-half would pass to the children. Here the wife and children themselves would become tenants in common with Jones, the surviving tenant in common.

The decision as to whether to create a joint tenancy or tenancy in common will depend on the relationship between the parties. When the landowner is trying to accomplish if Smith and Jones are brothers, have no other family, and each has contributed equally to the purchase of the land, then they will probably want to have a joint tenancy as joint tenants with right of survivorship.

However, let's assume that Smith and Jones are business partners with families. If each contributed equally to the purchase of the land, then they would want to have a joint tenancy as joint tenants with right of survivorship.

Venice

Alcohol charge filed

Willie J. Temple, 35, of St. Louis, was arrested at the 1200 block of Klein Street in Venice on March 15 and charged with illegal transportation of alcohol in his vehicle. He was released on a notice to appear.

Arrested on McKinley

Robert L. Johnson, 41, of the 200 block of Hill Street, Eagle Park, was arrested on the McKinley Bridge on March 11. Charged with reckless driving, driving too fast for conditions, and operating an uninsured motor vehicle, he was released on a notice to appear.

St. Louis man arrested

Michael Frye, 39, of St. Louis was arrested March 9 for possessing stolen license plates, disobeying a stop sign, and driving a car with only one operating taillight. He was released March 11 on $1,502 cash bail.

Venice man charged

Timothy Williams, 22, of Bissell Street in Venice was charged with disobeying a peace officer March 12. Williams allegedly was standing in front of the Venice Garden Apartments in the 100 block of Weaver Street and refused to leave the area after being told to do so by a Venice police officer. Williams was released on cash bail.

Cannabis charge filed

Stacey M. Moore, 28, of St. Charles, Mo., was charged with unlawful possession of cannabis on March 11. A passenger in a van, she allegedly had two marijuana cigarettes in a pocket of her clothing.

reporting, Melucci was ahead with 46 percent while Bridick began a long night of catch-up with 40 percent of the vote.

After a regular series of calls from the Madison County Courthouse, Melucci finally celebrated at midnight when he was told he led Bridick by 4,497 votes. Almost all of the precincts had reported at that time.

"I don't like declaring myself a winner but I feel like it's over," he said. "I'm very gratified but I'm very humbled."

It was a long night for Bridick and his supporters, who gathered at Ralph's and Chester's restaurant in Pontoon Beach. While they were anxiously awaiting the return from Bridick's 100 precincts in Granite City, Madison and Venice, Bridick's hopes kept slipping in the returns that were arriving.

The "big" precincts came through for Bridick as expected, but by the time those results arrived — by the well after midnight — it had become apparent that he would have to virtually shut down. Melucci, in order to make up enough ground, Bridick said he knew it was going to be a hard battle against the party organization, but said he had obviously hoped for a different result.

Matt Melucci

"Still, when you have 11,000 people willing to vote for you, it's nothing to be ashamed of. I put up a good fight and can hold my head high," Bridick said.

Melucci was endorsed by the Democratic party, as well as by Willard "Butch" Portell, the retiring circuit clerk.

Melucci's supporters were excited about the win Tuesday night.

"I think he has very good character," said Mildred Noeth of Nameoki Township. "I've never heard any adverse comments about him."

Melucci attributed his success Tuesday night to his persistence and qualifications.

During his campaign, Melucci and many of his supporters visited housing projects in Alton and Venice, he said.

"I went to places people said I shouldn't in Alton," he said. "It was a great response. People really liked it."

Greg Harper, a member on Melucci's election committee, helped man the telephone at the Lions Club.

"I knew he was going to win, I just didn't know the margin he was going to win by," Harper said after Melucci claimed victory.

"The voters of Madison County are waiting for an experienced candidate and he's the man," Harper said.

Although this was Melucci's first time as a candidate, his political experience runs deep.

Along with being the former chief of staff for U.S. Rep. Jerry Costello, D-Belleville, Melucci has been the director of administration for Madison County, executive director of the East Alton Gas Co. Coordinating Council and director of the Southwest Illinois Law Enforcement Commission.

City issues called factor in committee leader's loss

By Mike Myers
Staff writer

State Democratic Central Committee woman Judy Whitaker figures her unexpected defeat at the polls Tuesday has little to do with party politics.

Karen Melton defeated Whitaker by 61 votes in Whitaker's re-election bid for Democratic precinct committee chairman in Granite City Precinct 32.

Melton's campaign attacked actions Whitaker had taken as a Granite City alderman, including voting to change for trash collection to a private company in 1986 at the Eticam waste treatment plant proposed along Illinois 3.

"It doesn't seem fair, does it?" Whitaker asked. "That doesn't have anything to do with being a good committee man.

"I built this precinct up to be the largest in Granite City and always carried the candidates worked for. I only hope she does as good a job as I did."

Based on votes cast, Granite City 32 has been among the top five precincts in Madison County in every election since the 1988 county with 543 votes cast.

"Unfortunately, the majority weren't for me," Whitaker said.

The loss means Whitaker will not be eligible to run for re-election to the state central committee when her term ends in two years.

Two other long-time Granite

City Democratic committeemen managed to hold their offices

Jim "Red" Worthen defeated Sandy Shaw by only three votes in Granite City 20 while John

"Jeff" Worthen defeated T. A. Feller by nine votes in Granite City 23.

Frank Laub, the city's Democratic chairman, won more handily over his opponent, Kimberly Aftolter, winning by 32 votes.

Naylor wins coroner nomination

Larry Naylor of Wood River will seek to derail incumbent Madison County Coroner Dallas Burke's re-election bid in November.

Naylor easily out-pollled Rich Hampson of Wood River to win the Republican nomination for coroner in Tuesday's primary.

Complete but unofficial results showed Naylor with 3,941 votes and Hampson with 2,671.

Burke was unopposed for the Democratic nomination.

Naylor could not be contacted, but his campaign manager, David Francis, said Naylor won because he is better qualified than his opponent.

Naylor operates a license and title service business in Beloit and is a licensed embalmer and funeral director.

Hampson, a Wood River resident, is a registered nurse with 20 years of emergency room experience.

Francis said Naylor outworked Hampson "100 percent" in the campaign.

"I think (Naylor) will prove to the voters that he's better qualified than Dallas Burke," Francis said. "I think Dallas Burke is qualified for the coroner's office."

Hampson took the defeat in stride. "It looks like Republicans nominated the candidate they thought was most qualified. That's their determination to make."

Hampson said his political career is not over.

"I'll run for coroner again," he said. "This has been a learning experience for me."

County board seeks new jobs

By Nicole Vaughn
Staff writer

Two resolutions passed Wednesday by the Madison County Board seek to bring jobs to the area, or at least help.

The first resolution approved a $100,000 loan to Merit Railroad Contractors Inc. The St. Louis company, which is bringing 18 existing factory jobs to the area, the Mitchell area, has promised to create an additional nine full-time jobs within two years as well as creating temporary construction crew jobs for up to 63 more people.

The company has also agreed that at least 51 percent of the new permanent jobs will be filled by qualified low- to moderate-income county residents.

The loan, which will come from Community Block Grant funds for economic development activities within the county, is to be repaid in five years at a 3 percent interest rate.

But while some new jobs may be coming to the area, others might be lost.

Albert Charleston, D-Alton, read a statement opposing plans to expand a wire mill in Alton out of the area.

"If Laclede Steel is allowed to do this ... it will have an adverse effect on the life of everyone in the River Bend area," Charleston said.

The company has also agreed that at least 51 percent of the new permanent jobs will be filled by qualified low- to moderate-income county residents.

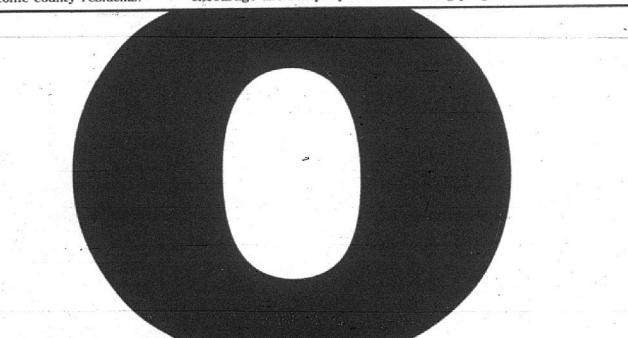

a new pipe-finishing and warehouse operation there. State and federal incentives are also being offered to the company to expand a wire mill operation in Franklin.

Charleston, with the support of his statement to Gov. Jim Edgar, state and federal representatives, asking them to re-examine incentives for giving such incentives.

In other action, the board awarded solid waste management to a City of Granite City and to a District 9 school.

The city will receive $26,500 for the solid waste collection system, while the school will receive $1,000 for a pilot recycling program.

There's no place like home — just ask the Cannady children.

Chrissy, 13, Bobby, 13, Michael, 12, and Amber, 9, arrived home from Sri Lanka three weeks ago for the first time in nearly two years.

On Saturday, all eyes were on a small color television set in the living room of the family's modest, one-story apartment in Glen Carbon. The children were taking a TV break after arranging the living room furniture that had arrived that morning.

But while they've only been back a few weeks, it hasn't taken the children long to get used to a furnished home. TV, the telephone, food and an escape from year-round heat.

The children said their Sri Lankan home — where family of eight lived — was about the size of the living room in their new apartment.

Before their father returned to Sri Lanka for them in January, the children had lived in fear of being taken by Sri Lankan immigration officials.

"The immigration people came and wanted to take us to a camp because we were living in the country without visas," Chrissy recalled. "We were really scared."

When Sri Lankan officials told the Rev. Leroy Cannady to get out of the country or the sentence in six months, and to take his children with him — he was glad to oblige.

Apprentice applications available

The employers and the Southern Illinois District Council of Carpenters Joint Apprenticeship Committee have announced apprentice slots are available for apprenticeship training in the carpentry trade, regardless of race, creed, color, national origin, or sex. April 6-10 and April 13-17.

All applicants must register at their local union office during above dates and must reside in the jurisdiction of the program area.

I plan to continue my work and to devote enough time to a salaried job to put food on the table and keep my family whole."

— Rev. Leroy Cannady

"They'd have had us out sooner if they'd have been able to get all of us on a plane," Cannady said. "I was stalled there, though, because I'd hoped to bring everyone home together."

Cannady, 48, a Christian missionary and founder of the Impetus Institute, was living in Sri Lanka last September when the government gave him 24 hours to leave. He did not have the money to take his four children with him, so he sold his new wife and her two children have been allowed to leave.

Cannady took his children to Sri Lanka after selling his upper-class Glen Carbon home in 1990. He had been teaching Sri Lankans to build stone homes instead of mud ones, which are easily washed away in typhoons. Like his family, those homes are now incomplete.

While teaching a class with the Impetus Institute last February, Cannady met his current wife. They married three months later.

Cannady said his ejection from the country was reluctantly motivated, just one of several anti-Christian acts going on in Sri Lanka. Many of the other missionaries that Cannady had worked with are "on the move" after being chased from their homes.

They avoided staying in one place for very long, fearing for their lives, Cannady said.

But while his Sri Lankan wife, Ramaka, and her two children are back in Sri Lanka, Cannady led everyone to believe that they left when he did.

Only American government officials know where his family is staying, Cannady said. Canadian government officials told him that his wife's papers and those of her children had been approved, but that it would take four to 45 days for them to be processed at the visa processing center in Arlington, Va.

"I haven't been able to bring myself to tell my wife that," Cannady said. "It's still going to be a while before they get here."

When she arrives home, Mrs. Cannady will have lots of surprises in store for her. Cannady has been "bargain hunting," and Saturday he was able to furnish his family's new home.

While there are still some things lacking, Cannady said his family has all they need.

"Our needs are being met so I don't want to overdo the asking," Cannady said. "The blessings we've received in the past and the blessings we have now are enough."

Cannady received several donations, and he will get his family back to the United States and to provide a home for them once they get here.

Cannady said he was grateful for the donations and was particularly moved by a note from an 86-year-old woman that accompanied one.

"Her prayers and encouragement for the reunion of my family was wonderful," Cannady said. "A missionary's life is one letter and letters are blessings in themselves."

And while Cannady will not risk putting his family back in harm's way, he said he plans to return to Sri Lanka once or twice a year to continue his work.

Cannady said he hopes to work with a handicapped mission and may renew his old work as a meat cutter, a job he held before working at Kroger.

"I plan to continue my work and to devote enough time to a salaried job to put food on the table and keep my family whole," he said.

3,500 are expected at teachers' institute

Approximately 3,500 public and nonpublic school teachers and administrators are expected to attend the annual Madison County Teacher's Institute Friday, March 27, at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville.

All unemployed and retired teachers in Madison County are invited and encouraged to attend the Institute.

Harry A. Briggs, regional superintendent of schools, will be the official host for the Institute. According to Briggs, the Institute will feature a board spectrum of sessions and formats from which teachers can select their day's activities.

"Our advisory committee has worked very hard to provide teachers with choices based on their particular field of expertise, interest or need," he said.

Participants on the "Topic" program are Dr. Charles B. Dygart, Hartsell Haws and Jack Kaufman.

Dygart will share the message "Education for the 21st Century" at 8:45 a.m.

Haws will address institute participants with the presentation "Creating An Environment For Excellence" at 11:15 a.m.

Kaufman will expose the audience to a music/multi-media performance at 11:45 a.m.

All three presentations will be in the Communication Building Theatre.

In addition, there will be more than 40 small group sessions offered at the Institute along with extensive educational exhibits.

Special features of the Institute will include a blood pressure/cholesterol screening, a Concert Band Literature Reading Clinic and teacher certificate recognition.

In addition, there will be tours of the Alton Lock and Dam, the Riverlands Environmental Demonstration Area and the St. Louis Science Center.

Public schools in Madison County and most nonpublic schools will be closed Friday, so that teachers may attend the Institute.

Madison County school personnel serving on the advisory committee for the 1992 Institute are as follows: Regina Chappell, Roxana; 1; Vincent Changco and Teresa Oakley, Triad 2; Luvenia Lovell and Vicki Verma, 3; Mary Jane Helsel, Livingston 4; James Gifford and Judy Harrison, Highland 5; Jeanne Brumworth and Lawrence Busch, Edwardsville 7; Jane Middleton, Granite City 8; Karen Cooper, Granite City 9.

Rodney Woods and Sandra Persons, Collinsville 10; Marcia Dodds and Ron May, Alton 11; Linda Moore, Madison 12; Patti Sontag, Judy Sweet and Betty Cole, East Alton Elementary 13; Carol Thompson, East Alton/Wood River High School 14.

Melody Clugston and Mark Studnicki, East Alton/Wood River High School 14; John Rogers, Marquette High School; Dr. Harold E. Sorenson, Belleville Area Colloquial; Michael McCollum, Educational Service Center 16.

Debra Jurkanin, Vocational Adjustment Counseling Program; Garnett Shorb, Illinois Department of Public Health.

Frank Van Doren, Regional Superintendent's staff; Debra Kibort, Educational Therapy Center, and Ann Linefelder, Madison County Solid Waste Management.

The coordinating committee, chaired by Harland Scheibal, professional assistant in the Madison County Regional Office, includes Juanita Sibley and Dr. Stefan Krichnai of SUES and Dr. Nancy Krichnai and Vicki Kelly of the regional office.

Horseshoe Lake Road paving to begin

The Illinois Department of Transportation says that beginning Monday, Horseshoe Lake Road (State Aid 35) will have lane restrictions between Illinois 162 and I-255 during the daylight hours only for pavement patching.

The patching will be completed by June 15.

Don Weber

Moses Harrison

Weber, Harrison will meet in November

Former Madison County State's Attorney Don Weber will battle with Appellate Justice Moses Harrison this fall for the 5th District state Supreme Court seat.

Weber, an Edwardsville Republican, and Harrison, a Caseyville Democrat, handily won their respective primaries Tuesday.

The two will vie in the district that comprises 37 Southern Illinois counties to succeed Justice Horace Calvo of Glen Carbon, who died last year.

With 1,434 of 1,437 precincts tallied, Harrison had 72,865 votes, or 56 percent, to Appellate Judge Charles Chapman's 50,964 votes, or 31 percent. Retired Circuit Judge Carl Becker had 41,028 votes, or 25 percent.

In the Republican primary, with 1,354 of 1,437 precincts tallied, Weber had 37,370 votes, or 67 percent, to 18,363 votes, or 33 percent, for Mount Carmel attorney John Ragsdale.

Weber said he was looking for a "clear-cut win" and got it.

"I'd rather be the choice of the voters on election day than the choice of the lawyers a couple of weeks before," Weber said, referring to an Illinois State Bar Association poll on the candidates.

The lawmakers gave Rhine a "commended" rating but rated Weber a "strongly not recommended."

Weber pledged that if elected he would not hear cases involving any law that would give him that contributes $5,000 or more to his general election campaign. He challenged Harrison to do the same.

Harrison could not be reached for comment Tuesday night.

Any contribution that big is "an investment, not a contribution," Weber said.

Weber's desire to discuss political issues, which is barred by court rules, dominated the race.

Weber said the rule keeps voters in the dark. Rhine, who wants to modernize the court system, said she would abide by its rules.

In another state Supreme Court primary race Tuesday, Cook County Appellate Judge James W. McMorrow moved a step closer to becoming the first woman on the Illinois Supreme Court. She won an eight-way battle in the Democratic primary for the Cook County seat.

McMorrow will face Appellate Judge Robert Buckley, a Republican, in November.

Congressmen, legislators have relaxing election day

Candidates for the area's two congressional seats and most of those running for the Legislature could relax and celebrate St. Patrick's Day Tuesday because they had no opposition.

Sen. Sam Vadalabene, D-Edwardsville, and state Rep. Jim McPike, D-Alton, and not only were unopposed in their own parties, they have no general election challenge.

State law does, however, allow party precinct committeemen to nominate candidates for the general election until April 18.

Meanwhile, Republican Chairman Edward Ragsdale conceded Tuesday that no potential GOP challengers to Vadalabene or McPike have come forward. "There was one fellow who wanted to run against McPike, but his wife talked him out of it."

"We would welcome qualified people talking to us."

State Sen. Frank Watson, R-Greenwood, who is new 55th Senate District includes more of Madison County, faces a challenge in November from famed long-distance runner Craig Virgin. Both were unopposed in Tuesday's party primaries.

Also enjoying a free ride Tuesday were Congressmen Jerry Costello, D-Belleville, and Richard Durbin, D-Bronxville.

Durbin, however, squares off against Republican candidate John Shimkus of Collinsville, Madison County treasurer, in November.

Philippians 4:11 "... I have learned, in whatever state I am, therewith to be content."

The Apostle Paul is telling us several things here in a very few words. First, he is telling us that God's way, with us is a teaching way. He will teach us love, patience, gentleness, etc. When we do not learn these, the first lesson, God will keep on teaching until we do learn. Do not become discouraged when life isn't perfect. God is teaching you to trust him.

Godliness with contentment is great gain. Understand that many people who are not contented and worship regularly are not contented with their lives. We must LEARN to be content.

Remember, that God is in control. He loves you. He gives his peace to you. He will never leave nor forsake you. Believe that and you have contentment in your soul.

Today.

Braun

"I think the lady had a good track record in the Legislature and as (Cook County) recorder of deeds, and she came across well in the debate," he said.

Randdale said his party does well against opponents who offer a marked contrast with the GOP conservative philosophy. "It's just two-tenths and two-tenths, what do we do?" he said.

He said Republican strategy would be to cast Braun as a "big-spending, ultra-liberal" and stay away from the fact she's a black woman.

Other area Democrats put the best face on losing a longtime Southern Illinois senator known for taking good care of his state. "It's a long night,"... maybe our party is a bust," said John Rekowski, a Democratic precinct committee man and Madison County public defender. "It's a start, though, I think she's going to be a media darling for the next few weeks."

Rekowski said the Senate seat was important to Democrats here and it's a race they wanted Braun to win. "I mean, she's a good person, she's a good senator," he said. "I mean, she's a good senator for the country, she's a good senator for the state."

"She's an absolutely salable candidate for the state."

Ragsdale, however, said she was vulnerable downtown.

Republicans will try to cast

Braun as a member of the Chicago Democratic machine.

He said Williamson, who lives in the Chicago suburb of Evans ton, is not obligated to the machine and will do a much better job for the local area. "We didn't do our fair share, but Rich Williamson will do better for us."

Dixon said he'd never again seek political office.

"I've had a wonderful life... I've lost 29 times with grace, and I lose grace with God, with that same grace."

Given scant media attention before Tuesday night's upset, Braun appeared on national television Wednesday to discuss her victory.

"Our state is hurting, as much of the country is, and I think folks had a sense that the Senate had lost touch with Illinois, that the senator had lost touch with

Illinois, and they really wanted to see more attention paid to the economic concerns of our state," she said. "I think she's going to be a media darling for the next few weeks."

Rekowski said his strategy in the coming months would remain unchanged.

"We're going to do it the old fashioned way, to take forth the message that ordinary folks can have a voice in government," she said.

She said Braun would become the first black woman as well as the first black Democrat elected to the Senate.

Dixon, 64, was gracious in defeat, his first in a career that started in 1949.

Haine in landslide win over O'Neill

Madison County State's Attorney William Haine said he had some unfinished business and voters agreed to let him get at it.

Haine is one step closer to another four years in office after Tuesday night's landslide victory over Alton attorney Dan O'Neill for the Democratic nomination.

Haine, campaigning for his second term, overwhelmed O'Neill by a vote of 23,832 to 11,707.

"I'm gratified at the support of the Democratic primary voters of Madison County," Haine said as election results were tallied and posted in the county courthouse. Haine took an early evening.

Haine, an Alton attorney, has no Republican opponent in the November general election, but the Madison County Republican Central Committee said it wants to mount opposition.

In his bid for the Democratic nomination, Haine said his record was not as solid as he'd like, and controversial issues, has filed a record number of felony charges, put more people in prison and created trial forces to combat drunken driving and child abuse.

"I hope we can continue to improve the office," he said.

Tuesday night, O'Neill waited at Eddie's Bon-Air in Alton, singing Irish songs and playing the guitar. He couldn't be reached for comment on his race.

The two candidates had traded heated barbs in the final weeks of the campaign, but Haine said O'Neill's "scurribles" attacks had no basis in fact and voters probably who was the better candidate.

"My opponent ran a hard-hitting campaign, O'Neill," Haine said. "I didn't."

During his campaign, O'Neill, an assistant attorney general, said it was time to get politicians out of the prosecutor's office. He also blasted Haine for allowing himself to keep his price four years ago to stop plea bargaining.

Haine said his office uses plea bargains with felons as a last resort.

O'Neill also criticized technical errors made by Haine's staff, but Haine has stood by his staff's decisions and said he has successfully appealed a number of unsuccessful rulings.

Bloodless coup rocks Illinois

People who have grown disillusioned with the American political system should take heart in the fact that Sen. Alan Dixon will soon be putting a Carol Moseley Braun bumper sticker on his car.

Braun defeated Dixon, who easily outspent Braun's campaign 10 to one, and also Al Hofeld, who outspent Dixon two to one. Said a victorious Braun, "This proves grassroots politics are alive and well. The voice of the people still carries weight in Illinois."

European scholars looking at American democracy, in tones of amazement, admiration and sometimes horror, have called the American system of elections "short bursts of anarchism."

In the 200 years since America began, the concept of democracy has been adopted by every Western European country. Not one of them, however, followed the American model. While conceding that people should have a voice in how they're governed, Europeans felt the American method of giving people a voice was too anarchistic.

In American history indicates that the then-ruling Whig, Democratic (Now Republican), Republican (now Democratic), modern Democratic and modern Republican parties periodically found themselves in agreement with the Europeans. All attempted to restrict the people's ability to exert control over the government by passing treason and sedition laws. In each case, the people simply responded by voting out the ruling party.

If there is any doubt that Dixon's defeat represents the end of Illinois politics as we know it, consider the following:

In more than two dozen previous elections over 43 years, Dixon had never been defeated.

Twice, Dixon set vote-getting records in statewide races. Until Braun began sending out feelers last spring, Dixon had never had a serious primary opponent for statewide office.

If Braun wins in the November general election, it will represent a complete palace revolt. It is a revolt without tanks, guns, massacres or civil war, but Braun is attempting an Illinois overthrow that would change the way people are governed just as surely as any third-world coup.

And, as Braun leads the revolt, Dixon will be at her side. Only in America.

County party retains power

The Democratic Party continued its dominance in Madison County on Tuesday, garnering 40,990 votes to 8,908 Republican ballots. The turnout was 39 percent.

Matt Melucci, the party-endorsed candidate for circuit court clerk, won a four-way primary battle, with 17,266; Donald Bridich waged a credible race but finished second with 11,166. State's Attorney William Haine gained nomination for a second term, defeating Dan O'Neill, 23,832 to 11,707.

For the Madison County Board, Democrats generally voted for experience. Exceptions occurred in District 16, where first-timer Morris Miles with 564 lost to Charles "Tim" Knott's 663 (Helen Hawkins tallied 576), and District 21, where Ray Romine outdistanced incumbent Vasil Eftimoff, 7,079 to 789.

In District 22, where the field of four included two incumbent board members, Herbert "Junior" Milton edged Frank Dutko, 593 to 557. Incumbents renominated included Frank Laub, District 19, Nelson Hagnauer, District 20, Don Garrett, District 23, and Donald Rea, District 25.

Well organized, thoughtful event

TO THE EDITOR: On Jan. 25, the young ladies and gentlemen of Granite City High School treated a large number of senior citizens to a senior prom at the gymnasium on campus.

It was a well-organized, beautifully decorated and well attended event. The dance floor was crowded all evening long and, toward the end of the evening, the young people joined in.

But for the vast majority of the evening, the same young people busied themselves with serving the seniors.

This showed the efforts to their tables, served them drinks, attended the buffet line, took care of any necessary cleanup work, and just generally saw to it that the seniors attending the event were well taken care of.

Many a comment was overheard that night about the young ladies and gentlemen that they were courteous, genuinely solicitous and anxious to ensure that everyone had a good time.

With the steady diet we receive these days in all the media about our youths in this country who are on drugs, alcohol, in trouble in school and whose behavior borders on being antisocial, it was hard to believe that night that these young people who were so interested in making us happy came from the same world as those on TV and

Says porn linked to serial killings

TO THE EDITOR: Who's right? The killing sprees of Ted Bundy and Jeffrey Dahmer were of my surprise to me. That's not the point I want to make. The issue is why, not who.

FBI statistics prove that over 80 percent of serial killers were trapped in pornography. Can this be a coincidence? Sorry, I'm afraid not.

When the mind indulges in wrongful thoughts long enough, it can become a disease. The mind with porn can become like a person who starts out with mild drugs and tells himself he will draw the line on how far to go.

But the flesh is weak and becomes a desire for harder drugs. If Corinthian 10:5 tells us that all our thoughts must be controlled by obedience to God, Controlling our mind and thoughts is a key to life. If our mind is always thinking and dwelling on good things, we won't have time to fill our minds with bad things.

A town in Ohio banned all porn material. With such actions, rape, child molestation, incest, and sexual crimes dropped to zero.

Who's right? By the way, when police searched Dahmer's home, it was loaded with porn magazines and films.

Local control of United programs

TO THE EDITOR:

To United Way contributors: We have received inquiries about the recent news articles on the financial and fiscal practices of the United Way of America, Alexandria, Va.

We recognize your concerns and want to assure you that the voluntary team that runs the Tri-Cities Area United Way joins with you in these concerns and is treating the allegations very seriously.

William Aramony, the president of United Way of America, responded on Feb. 27.

An investigation of the management practices of United Way of America is currently being conducted and a report will be made on April 2.

Tri-Cities Area United Way is one of 1,400 independent United Way organizations which voluntarily pay dues to the national organization. The dues paid to the national organization are less than 1 percent of our contributions.

We will withhold our national dues pending the results of the investigation.

The national organization provides advertising, training courses, internship programs, personnel placement and information from other local United Ways to our local organization. We have been a participating member of the national organization for many years and have received good service from them.

We particularly want to assure our contributors that a review of the Tri-Cities Area United Way internal budget, Statement of Account, Public Accountants, shows that our local United Way continues to be fiscally sound.

The salaries, benefits and administrative costs add up to less than 15 percent, one of the lowest administrative cost percentages in the world.

During the 1991 campaign, $100,000 was contributed to United Way for services in our community. Our local United Way will strive to maintain the confidence of our contributors.

The next question which we hope will be clarified by the investigation of the national association. On a local level, we will work even harder to provide services to people in need.

Please understand that the Tri-Cities Area United Way is locally governed by a volunteer board of directors to insure that your contributions are used for services.

Twenty-four agencies rely on your donations to provide assistance to the people they serve.

Tri-Cities Area United Way has been a leader in the confidence in United Way very seriously and acts accordingly. Any charges are significant to us and to our contributors.

Opposes plant as too hazardous

TO THE EDITOR:

Every once in awhile over the past few years a small community like ours would come into the national news with street protests and other means of opposition because their community was being considered as a site for a hazardous waste treatment facility such as the one that was granted a permit by the EPA to locate here.

Their efforts are usually successful. The citizens of this community must do whatever it takes to prevent this from happening here (construction of a hazardous-waste plant).

All chemical plants here have the most stringent guidelines set up by the Environmental Protection Agency and the Occupational Safety and Health Administration for the safety of the environment and the personnel involved in their operation.

But with all precautions taken there are still many chemical spills that occur because of operators.

When loading or unloading tank trucks and tank cars, there can be violent chemical reactions caused by equipment failure, ruptured lines, etc.

Large chemical spills released into the atmosphere are never reported by the operators for fear of discipline by their supervisors. If a chemical spill is reported to the EPA, it is after the fact. The damage has been done.

How many chemical plants in the past couple of years have been rocked by explosions that have killed people and caused evacuation of a lot of them. But not one has been caused by an airplane falling from the sky.

Chemical companies have constant water line drills in case there is a spill or accidental release of fumes.

I don't doubt the cleanliness of the facility that the alarmers of visitors. When visitors come to the plant, they are steered to the cleanest departments for a good impression.

Mr. Brett Hanke should get his head out of the sand and do a little research on just who the word "toxic" (hazardous) chemical waste really means.

He is right in one respect, though, when he states that we do not accept responsibility for Eitam to open. Every chemical plant in this country with thousands of drums of toxic chemical waste that they can't get rid of, will be on their back.

They claim my visiting the facility so as to invading the privacy and I would use the information to embarrass the five employees. This is pure nonsense.

In my four-plus years on the board, I have asked to view only three personnel files and the information was never divulged to anyone.

George President Cipfl is a most dedicated and independent contractor.

That is certainly true, but only after Mr. Hanke attempted to resolve the problems he had and closed doors were unsuccessful, only regret that I didn't come down harder on a couple of them.

I am concerned about Cipfl's

B.7. Abide by and uphold the final majority decision of the Board. B.8. Remember that as an administrator, I have legal authority and conduct my relations with the local citizenry, the college staff and media accordingly.

B.9. Accept responsibility for establishing the policies by which the College is to be administered, and leave the administration of the educational program and the conduct of college business to the president and designated staff.

Furthermore, Mr. Farmer has a past history of humiliating employees in public meetings unmercifully.

For these reasons, we strongly reiterate our support of the board's lawsuit against Trustee Ted Farmer.

Ted Farmer tells his side of story

TO THE EDITOR:

Belleville Area College President Joe Cipfl and his board are going to come in an effort to prevent me from viewing five personnel files and the resumes of those who recently applied for a position at BAC.

I state that I have publicly embarrassed some BAC administrators and independent contractors.

That is certainly true, but only after Mr. Hanke attempted to resolve the problems he had and closed doors were unsuccessful, only regret that I didn't come down harder on a couple of them.

They claim my visiting the facility so as to invading the privacy and I would use the information to embarrass the five employees. This is pure nonsense.

In my four-plus years on the board, I have asked to view only three personnel files and the information was never divulged to anyone.

George President Cipfl is a most dedicated and independent contractor.

I am concerned about Cipfl's hiring practices. The best qualified candidate is not always selected. I am also concerned about the unequal treatment of some individuals.

I have the right as a board member to review files in order to ensure we are not engaging in any unfair hiring practices and to ensure equality among the personnel.

If a board member cannot check on a president's job performance, then I can. Doing me that right allows Cipfl and his inner circle to operate in secrecy.

Cipfl and his board are apparently so intent as to not to discover now, in the future that they have chosen to use the taxpayers' money to drag me through the court system to keep me from fulfilling my contract obligations.

I requested we ask our board attorney for an opinion. He is aware of the issues and is extremely competent but they were not interested in having an attorney from Edwardsburg for $80 an hour and engage me in a lengthy court battle.

What will be the cost to the taxpayers and me if I decide to fight them on this issue?

Member, BAC board

Government not a health solution

TO THE EDITOR:

The article in the Journal's March 4 issue quoting our State Rep. Jim McPike was quite interesting to me.

I wonder if our legislators want to have health insurance provided through some wild government program when we can't even pay for the medical treatment needed by our state workers.

His quote is that the state owes between $135,000,000 and $150,000,000 for medical bills through last year.

That must mean that this wonderful plan must owe even more, since it is now March and just short of four months until the next year.

Please tell me anyone could prefer this kind of government-sponsored health "insurance" plan over one provided through the open competition market we have, using the present thousands of competing insurance companies.

Local band is getting its shot at the big time

Sable to perform for record companies in Louisville

By Cori Elmore and Melissa Lynch
Correspondents

Local band Sable is seeing a great deal of success lately. The group will be traveling to Louisville, Ky., on March 28, to perform for publishers and record companies.

Sable started in late 1988 when brothers Chris and Jeff Sable blindly stepped onto the dark stage at a talent show at Granite City High School, where they were both students. They didn't realize that was the first step to the beginning of their professional music careers.

The two brothers recall the overwhelming feeling of performing in front of so many people. They say it was that feeling that inspired them to pursue music careers.

The band that resulted from this performance was called Xanthus — a name that didn't last long.

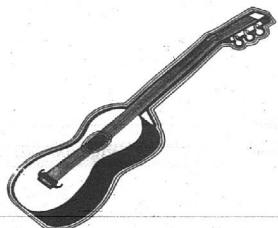

"People didn't know how to pronounce Xanthus, so we changed it to Sable," said Chris Sable.

The young brothers' band began playing at high school parties and dances, which eventually led to playing in small clubs. After saving the money they had earned from this frequent playing, the band recorded its first four-song demo. The response was so overwhelming that, shortly thereafter, "Follow Your Dreams," a five-song demo, was recorded and released.

At the same time, Sable was opening shows in St. Louis for acts like Bad English, Skid Row, Tora Tora and a Flock of Seagulls.

As Sable's popularity increased, the band's interest in being a strictly rock band lessened. The members felt a change was needed in the lineup and the attitude of the band, and therefore, took eight months to realign and form.

The band that re-entered the music circuit had undergone many structural changes in the eight months. Sable now consisted of five members: Bob McCormack, 25, on lead vocals and saxophone; Chris Sable, 21, on bass, guitar and vocals; Jeff Sable, 21, on keys, guitar and vocals; Allen Zentgraf, 24, on keyboards and vocals; and Joe Schuster, 21, on percussion.

'You get out of it what you put into it. If we keep putting in, eventually we'll get something back.'

— Jeff Sable

This new band spent most of its time working on its live show and writing new material. Two years after the release of "Follow Your Dreams," "Rock-n-Roll-Rap-n-Soul" was released. This breakthrough release was recorded over a nine-month period in the basement of the Sable home.

"It marked the absolute best work the band has done to date," said Chris Sable.

Since this release the band has picked up one more member, Mike Downing, 22, plays the saxophone for the group.

The members say that many types of music can be jazz, rap, and hard rock, influenced them to what they classify their own music as Top 40.

"The guys in the band are in it for their love of music. They are not interested in the money, although they did say they would like to eventually quit their day jobs and pursue their musical careers full time. In actuality, the individual members are not profiting from the performances. The money received from their performances is used to finance the expensive equipment and travel.

"You get out of it what you put into it. If we keep putting in, eventually we'll get something back," said Jeff Sable.

The band said playing in the clubs has helped them to gain popularity, and that because of the publicity received for it, new opportunities are opening up.

The band's trip to Louisville, and a trip to Nashville in April for Crossroads 1992, were coordinated by Crazy Horse Productions of Granite City.

YOUTH FOCUS:

Why do you think there is so much voter apathy in U.S. elections?

(Asked of students at Madison High School and Granite City HighSchool.)

Priscilla Brooks

Warren Kostenci

Tanya Champion

Candace Richmond

Nerissa Heard

Priscilla Brooks, Madison

"The reason why most voters are apathetic is because they give up and feel that their vote isn't going to count. Some people don't make time in their schedule to go out to the polls and other people just don't care. Another reason is that voters are distrustful of the politicians and of their immorality."

Warren Kostenci, Madison

"There is so much voter apathy in U.S. elections because people are suffering from political fatigue. Voters are tired of hearing politicians bash one another and think from their past against them. We are also being forced to choose between the lesser of two evils. This causes voters to not care any more about who is running."

Cary T. Bartling, Granite City

"America is the land of freedom and of choice, and this includes the choice to vote; the Constitution states that any U.S. citizen at least 18 years of age who is registered to vote can practice their right to vote. It does not say that they have to vote for the succeeding President of the United States of America. Some Americans feel that out of the millions of people that are registered to vote today not one of them is fit to work in the Oval Office. There are many Democrats who may feel that the Republican candidate is more qualified for the role of President than any of their party's candidates. They, however, may refuse to vote for a Republican and, thus, don't vote. Some Americans don't believe in the U.S. form of government, and refuse to vote for a President. Voter apathy takes place in America because of the ignorance of some who don't care about the country. The curiosity of some Americans also contributes to voter apathy. They may like one or even many people, but find a slight lack of character about him/her and become turned off to the idea of having that person as the President of the U.S.A."

"It is important for people to become more knowledgeable about politics and become active voters if they are to make informed voting decisions and have some control over their own destinies."

Nerissa Heard, Madison

"There is so much voter apathy because people feel their vote is not going to count toward voting for the President."

"People just think the whole voting process is already fixed and their vote doesn't matter." "Another reason people don't vote is because they are too lazy and don't get out to do polls to vote and the young people are just out trying to get a fast buck and don't even register to vote."

David McIvory, Granite City

"A few of the reasons that most people don't vote is that most people can care less about how the government is run. Some people don't even bother to do anything to help keep our country free for us people. Other people really don't care who runs the government. But on the other hand some people are too lazy to turn off their TVs and vote to make sure that the governments run in the people's best interests. To make most of the people see the light, we would need to have a major governmental disaster. But until something happens that opens the eyes of the people, we are going to have to rely on the few voters that don't want our government to fall apart."

Lisa Lewis, Granite City

"There is so much voter apathy because people don't have time to vote. Many people don't have time to vote. They have young children, work, or have other responsibilities that they believe are more important than voting. Thus, the people don't know enough about the candidates. They are afraid that they might choose the wrong person. They are afraid with responsibilities and fear because the people who simply just don't care. They feel that one vote will not change who becomes president."

Josh Houston, COHS

"In today's society everything is quick and easy and no one takes the time to vote. If all the presidential candidates appeared on prime time television and were each assigned a button on the remote control; almost all registered voters would take the time to do so. Also, the one thing that inspires a person to vote is to be in trouble or to get to the point in an extreme desire for a change. For this reason, in past elections the truly opinionated citizens were the only ones to vote. On the other hand, it stands to reason that in the upcoming presidential election a larger number of citizens will vote because many voters have been affected by the recession and will therefore desire a change. Only time will tell if this logic will hold true."

Catherine Alexander, Granite City

"The reason for voter apathy is simply that the American people don't have any interest in our country's mixed up leadership. They are not interested in politics. Taking the time to vote is considered a waste of time to people who do not have any sort of pride or enthusiasm in this country's leadership. Some people are just not going to follow what candidates stand for, voting them in, and then seeing them screw up in office and embarrass the American people again. Voting is senseless if you can't even comfort with whom you vote for."

Katie Ribbing, COHS

"There is too much voter apathy today because many people have lost the faith in the governmental system. Voters have decided to not care or not care about what happens to America. This is so, because the voters have been fed many promises that have never been carried through."

Brian Hamilton, COHS

"There is a lot of voter apathy due to the lack of interest in the candidates. People don't know who the candidates are, and they will do if they are elected. Some don't know what party the candidates are in or where they're from. Many people will not take the time or the time to vote. Some people don't even care. They figure their vote won't matter or determine the winner and don't bother voting. The candidates are not doing a good job of getting people to vote. George Bush saying no new taxes. If you can't trust these politicians, maybe they don't deserve our votes. If none of them can be trusted then why bother voting."

BUSINESS

Dr. Hill retires after 34 years

Robert S. Hill, MD, has retired from the medical staff at St. Elizabeth Medical Center in Granite City after 34 years of service as a family practitioner. Hill has been his practice. "It was pleasant, generally. I wish to thank my loyal employees, my colleagues on the medical staff, and associates I worked with at the medical center, and, of course, all my patients."

Hill is valued for his community contributions.

"I was in K mart a few months ago," said Sister Mary Thomas, chairman of the board at SEMC. "A lady stopped me wanting to know about Dr. Hill and served the community."

"She had served a patient of his and wanted to show her appreciation and honor him by having his retirement announced on the radio and in the paper on 106.9 FM. Much to her, and our, delight, it was mentioned several times. She was one of many who will sorely miss him."

A Granite City native, Hill served as hospital chief of staff in 1966-67.

If you have a dog . . .

You need to be concerned. Heartworm season is fast approaching. And it's as easy as a lazy afternoon nap in the shade for your dog to be affected by this potential killer. That's the bad news. The good news is that, with a few easy steps recommended by Bellemore Animal Hospital, heartworm disease is easy to prevent.

Canine heartworm disease is spread by mosquitoes. Every dog is a potential victim. If left untreated, heartworm disease can result in the death of your dog due to the damage it causes to the heart, lungs and other organs.

Signs of heartworm disease include a chronic cough, loss of appetite, weight loss and fatigue. However, these signs do not appear until the disease is well advanced. Sudden death can occur without any warning.

A simple blood test — once a year — can diagnose this disease. If your dog is free of heartworms, then a few simple treatments can protect your dog from heartworms for the rest of the year. The preventative is safe, affordable and easy to handle.

Bellemore Animal Hospital will be happy to answer any pet related questions you may have. Dr. Susan L. Jenner, practicing veterinarian at Bellemore, is a member of the American Heartworm Society, an organization of professionals dedicated to following the most recent advancements in prevention and treatment of Heartworm Disease.

You can call today to schedule your dog's heartworm check. Dr. Jenner or Dr. Timothy L. Holt will be happy to get to know you and your pet. Appointments can be made by calling during office hours.

Don't wait . . . it's a matter of life or death for your family's best friend.

Composting is recycling that will really pay off

The old-time gardener who earned the name "brown gold" for compost could be in for quite a shock at any garden center today. Compost — decomposed vegetable matter — is for sale by the bag. There are even a dozen competitive brands, each trying to look more "natural" than the other.

But what's natural about buying back what you just threw away? In some sense, your autumn leaves, grass clippings and kitchen scraps out like dry cleaning and having them come back with a bill! Yet many of us do this year after year without a second thought.

For people with extremely busy schedules or very tiny yards, home composting may be just plain impractical. If you have even a little more time and space, it's an opportunity to practice a kind of recycling that really makes a difference. As much as a third of what we send to our overburdened landfills each year is made up of leaves, grass clippings and other yard waste.

Even if recycling wasn't so important, there are still be good reasons to make your own compost. It's the world's best soil conditioner. It's what you need to produce "garden loam," that deep, dark, crumbly, rich soil that vegetables and flowers thrive in.

Garden loan doesn't occur in nature; you have to make it. So, if you'd like an opportunity to save and use the products of your own recycling efforts, home composting is for you. Here's how it's done.

New-fangled bin or old-fashioned pile? The main difference of the new compost bins and tumblers is that they're neater than a plain pile. A tumbler also eliminates the need to turn or otherwise aerate a compost pile.

Aeration is critical to the decomposition process, so buy the largest bin that's practical for you and make sure it has plenty of ventilation holes. Set bins on bricks or boards, off the ground or draw air in from the bottom.

If you have a sheltered, inconspicuous spot in the yard, you'll do just as well with a plain compost pile. Try to locate where you'll get some protection from wind and rain, which slow down the decomposition process.

Whatever method you use, the technique is the same. Alternate layers of organic matter (see list below) moisten as you go with the garden hose, and add a little high nitrogen fertilizer.

What to put in: Fallen leaves are your most plentiful source of compost material, and they break down rapidly in a pile. Grass clippings are also plentiful and excellent to use, but be sure to mix them thoroughly with other materials or they'll form compacted layers that smother the compost pile and slow down the process.

Weeds, light shrub trimmings, woody twigs, flower stalks from the garden, spoiled produce, etc., should all go in.

The heat of the compost pile — especially at the center — kills off weeds seeds, but don't put in obviously diseased plant material.

In the kitchen, save eggshells, coffee grounds, fruit and vegetable peels. Keep a large can with a cover or plastic bag and add to the pile weekly.

What to leave out: Meat, bones, grease and bread attract rodents, insects and other vermin. Leave them out. Heavy wood breaks down slowly.

Wood, sawdust, bark chips and similar materials should be composted separately. They use lots of nitrogen in the process and supplement the pile with a high nitrogen fertilizer and plan to allow a couple of years for it to break down fully.

Avoid large quantities of paper. Some newsprint contains chemicals that will inhibit the composting process.

A little soil is fine, but soil conditioner, and the satisfaction of having recycled much of your household waste for your own profit.

Dig finished compost into the flower and vegetable beds, use it under trees and shrubs, which attract trees and shrubs or a rich top-dressing for compacted grass clippings.

Getting things going: Air, moisture and a little nitrogen will stimulate the microorganisms present in the pile. Add layers of materials, dampen each and add a little fertilizer. You can simplify this by using water-soluble fertilizer, such as Miracle-Gro in a hose end feeder and simply spraying the pile as you add materials. You want everything uniformly moist, not sopping wet.

Using the finished product: In six months or so (less if you turn the pile occasionally or use a tumbler), you'll have a good supply of the world's best soil doesn't break down any farther than it already has, so composting it just wastes space.

Composting nature's leftovers is a simple way to dramatically reduce garbage and break down wastes into simpler, useful form. By adding a little high nitrogen fertilizer, even hard-to-compost materials such as pine needles and sawdust can be converted into an excellent soil amendment for gardens and lawns.

Lime and wood ash used to be recommended to keep odor down, but a smelly compost pile usually means poor air circulation. Check for compacted grass clippings.

Finally, remember that, for all its goodness, compost is not a complete fertilizer. It needs additional nutrients to thrive. Expert gardeners, many of whom consider themselves "organic" gardeners, use a combination of materials, such as compost, and supplementary feeding with water-soluble fertilizer.

Many blue ribbons and world championships, including record vegetables and flowers in the Guinness Book have been won using this method. The results speak for themselves.

Composting for cleaner environment

No longer is composting "just big smelly piles of leaves." Composting, done properly, is becoming just as important in the steps towards a cleaner environment as the recycling of cans and bottles and driving fuel-efficient cars.

To bring the public up to date on the environmental benefits of composting, as well as its contributions to a beautiful, more productive garden, Ames Lawn & Garden Tools is offering a free brochure on composting. The brochure is available by writing from "Weekend Gardener," Jim Bennett, host of the syndicated TV program, "Backyard America."

The new brochure tells how to compost successfully — what "cooks" well in a compost pile, what doesn't, and what you have to do to maintain it.

For instance, your compost pile must be aerated regularly to encourage the growth in microorganisms — it's their eating and digesting of yard waste that makes humus, the crumbly soil-like substance that is good for your garden.

It's not compost from Ames, it's particularly useful since the fork has been specially designed to make aeration easier. Its five tines are set close together for more efficient turning, and its extra-long, hardwood handle makes it easier to use and gives years of dependable service.

You can receive a copy of the new composting brochure by writing to Ames Lawn & Garden Tools, Dept. CB, P.O. Box 1774, Parkersburg, WV 26102.

THURSDAY, MARCH 19, 1992
GRANITE CITY PRESS-RECORD

Dave Whaley

Just accept it: Go, Collinsville!

It's bad enough the Collinsville Kahoks went to state in soccer and won it all. Now the Kahok basketball team is heading to The Big Show. Yikes!

Just kidding. The rivalry between the Warriors and Kahoks is a superb one. But it should be like the presidential race. Once one party has bowed out, they should get behind the other. Tsangas will be supporting Clinton by September, so local fans should get behind Collinsville this weekend.

As happy as Kahok soccer fans were in November, it's nothing compared to the Collinsville fans who were almost as excited about beating the Warriors than winning state in the fall.

There is no one rivalry that sticks out like that in basketball. Going to state and winning it is the main focus. Basketball means more to us than a solid rooster. Almost everyone in town would like to be Richard Keene's mother, father, uncle, sister or brother.

It's genuine. It won't kill anybody here to put up with the Kahoks this weekend. Those of us in southwestern Illinois should always root for area teams in state tournaments. Better one of us than someone from Chicago, right?

The Kahoks are in the top support. First up for them at the Assembly Hall in Champaign is Maywood Proviso East at 12:15 p.m. Friday. The Pirates won the Class A championship last year and are ranked No. 1 in the state this year with a 30-0 record. They've won 54 in a row.

But that doesn't guarantee anything. Alton Senior High was also undefeated and ranked first in the Class A poll, but had to settle for fourth place in last weekend's tournament. And Proviso East has an excellent chance to win the competition. The Pirates beat Oak Park River Forest by seven points in the sectional final Friday, then only beat the Collingsville edge team by eight in the Hinsdale Super-Sectional on Tuesday.

This is the Kahoks' first visit to state since 1978. Vergil Fletcher's team won the '78 title. The Kahoks placed third that year. Collinsville won state titles in 1961 and 1965 under Fletcher. The '61 team was 32-0 and claimed the mythical national championship. Current Kahok coach Bob Bone went to state twice as a player for Fletcher in 1972 and 1973. On both occasions Collinsville lost in the quarterfinals. He experienced the personal demons in the last week. He got his first coaching win over East St. Louis Lincoln on Friday, then finally made it to state as a coach with Tuesday's 49-41 win over Mt. Vernon. Good luck, Bob.

There will be a sense of urgency for the Kahoks this weekend. Of the seven players who saw significant playing time only John Keene and Greg Bauer are back. Five other seniors will have to come away from the Assembly Hall with good memories. One other senior, Keene, will have to have four more years at the school. Bob will want to give local fans a thrill before he trades in purple for orange and blue.

The Kahoks are also on the verge of making a little history on a national scale. A win Friday would be the 1,676th in Collinsville High School history. That would be a new national record. The current record is 1,688, now shared by Collinsville and Centralia. But the Kahoks have played 229 fewer games.

There is a lot to gain for Bone and the Kahoks Co. this weekend. Let's put aside that rivalry for a few days.

Go, Purple. ****

I'm sure Granite City fans noticed the score from the Chicago Public League finals on Sunday: Westinghouse 76, King 68.

Thinking back to Dec. 7, it had to be imagine any high school team beating Chicago King. The Jaguars were certainly too big and too quick for the Warriors that 91-46 drubbing.

But the Public League is highly competitive. When it came down to crunch time, Sonny Cox's team couldn't make the plays and Westinghouse beat the Jaguars 76-68. King and Thomas, Hamilton and the rest couldn't pick up the slack.

Rebuilding thinclads have some standouts

By Brian Henry
Correspondent

When analyzing this year's Warrior track team, it might be a better indicator to examine what they don't have rather than what they do.

The Warriors have lost high jumper Dan Brazeau (second in the state last year), their two top sprinters (Skip Birdsong and Jay Robertson), their best long jumper (Tim Weller) and their distance runners (Justin Stalling and Larry Strader) to graduation.

Suffice to say, this will be a rebuilding season.

Dave McClain
... solid in weight events

"We're really young on the track," said coach Dave McClain. "I hate to throw the freshmen and sophomores on the track against teams like Alton and the Belleville schools. I have decided what I'm going to do."

But Granite City does have three individuals who could advance out of the sectional and into the state meet. Larry Curry, who is bound for Northern Illinois, qualified for state in the discus last year and narrowly missed going in the shot.

Senior Ronalpeth has a good chance to advance in the discus and senior Lance Reynolds is the Warriors' best hope in the mile.

"I'd be surprised if Ronnie can go in the discus," said McClain. "Lance has a good chance in the mile, but he's going to have to get his time down, but down considerably. Larry is a strong competitor and he should go in both. Larry remembers what happened last year and he'll build on that."

Kahoks survive pesky Rams in super-sectional

By Greg Shashack

CARBONDALE — Tuesday will go down as something of a sacred day in Collinsville — and it has nothing to do with the Irish or St. Patrick's Day.

It was a day for purple, rather than green.

Basketball is more of a religion than a game to many people in Collinsville. And the team that is the Kahoks ended a 14-year absence from the Elite Eight by defeating Mount Vernon 49-46 on Tuesday in the Carbondale Class AA Super-Sectional, before a crowd of more than 8,000 at SIU Arena.

Collinsville, which improved to 23-7 and won its 11th straight game, advances to the state tournament at the Assembly Hall in Champaign, where the Kahoks will meet No. 1-ranked Maywood Proviso East at 7 p.m. Friday.

All Collinsville games at state will be live on radio. Friday's game and Saturday's semifinal will be on WRXT-AM (1080). A Saturday night game would be on WGN-TV (920).

The Kahoks are also on the verge of making a little history on a national scale. A win Friday would be the 1,676th in Collinsville High School history.

That would be a new national record. The current record is 1,688, now shared by Collinsville and Centralia. But the Kahoks have played 229 fewer games.

Interest on rise in girls program

By Brian Henry
Correspondent

The girls track program at Granite City High School has seen some lean times in the past few years, primarily a result of lack of interest.

Now the girls are picking up again as 23 girls have come out this spring. Included in that bunch are nine freshmen. Although coach Dave McClain doesn't know what he can do, he is looking forward to working with the prospective athletes.

"This is the most we've had out in the last two or three years," said McClain. "Whether they stay with it or not is a different story."

Sophomore Paula Hefner, who ran in the 100 and 200 meter races last year, is the Warriors' best hope for any type of advancement in the post-season. She was unable to run in sectionals last year because she was ill. If she's healthy this year, she has an outside chance to advance.

Outside chances are the best chances the girls have.

Other than Hefner, sophomore Jennifer Wheeler (high jump), junior Vicki Brandt (shot and disc) and senior Jennifer Wheeler (mile) are Granite City's best bets for success.

Wheeler will also run in some distance events. She'll be joined by seniors Maria Hawkins and sophomore Jaclyn Stallings, among others.

"We don't know what they can do, but maybe they'll be all right with some work," said McClain.

Curry was third in the shot with a throw of 50-3 at the Charleston Invitational last Saturday. He threw 51-3 at the Macomb Invitational on March 7. Reynolds ran a 4:45 mile at Charleston, good for seventh place.

"Larry is off to a strong start as usual," said McClain. "Lance needs to get his time down, but 4:45 is good for this early."

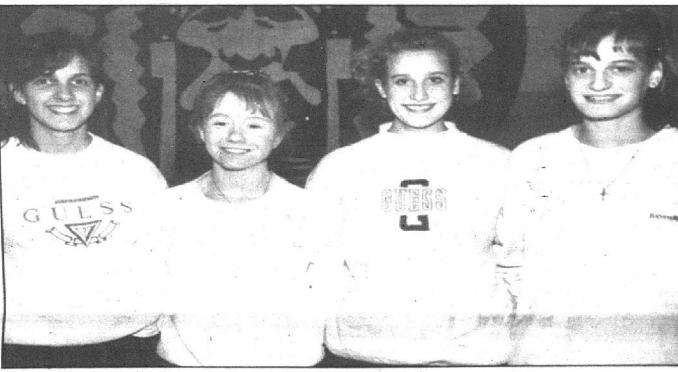

As has been the case in recent years, the Warriors will be Reynolds, a 6-2 center, scored 12 of the Kahoks' first 16 points and finished with a game-high 22 points by hitting 11 of 13 shots from the field. Keene, a 6-5 All-American guard, hit just 2 of 11 shots in the loss, but took charge in the game's final minutes to finish with 20 points.

Collinsville vaulted to a 12-2 lead against the Rams before Mount Vernon (25-5) called timeout.

"I told our kids, 'We've been here before and it really doesn't mean a whole lot,'" said coach Tim Holloway. "Our kids had to believe in themselves to get that 2-0 lead. And they did."

baskets, Keene hit a baseline 3-point shot with 1:55 left and then made one of two free throws with 38 seconds remaining to put Collinsville ahead 49-46.

Mount Vernon had its chances. Bernard Patton blew a breakaway dunk in the third quarter and Kendal Malone missed a layup. The Rams had a 12-point quarter deficit to the at 44-44 with 2:59 left in the game.

Wente takes over Tri-City

By Dave Whaley

If putting everything under one roof is the key to success then Tri-City Speedway might be ready to prosper.

The track, located on Illinois 203 just south of Interstate 70, is now under the ownership of Bob Wente Jr., who has promoted special events there for the past several years. Wente, a former race car driver and a promoter for several years, bought the track in November from Harry Alton Jr. of Springfield for $400,000.

"Owning a track wasn't in my plans when I started in this business," said Wente. "I thought I could promote races and be like Barnard and Bailey. But it's kind of like the deal with the past several years. Wente, a for-

Gardner out for two weeks after automobile accident

The Trojanette track program survived a mild scare March 11.

Junior Yukeitha Gardner, the defending state champion in the 100-meter dash, was involved in a three-vehicle traffic accident and suffered a mild case of whiplash. While she hasn't practiced since last Friday, Gardner is expected to rejoin practice and compete by March 31.

"It's nothing serious," said Madison coach Gene Briggs. "She experienced some stiffness in her neck and shoulder area. She told her to take a few days off. Apparently, rest was the best remedy in her case."

Gardner was a passenger on a Mayflower bus when she struck from behind while attempting to make a left turn at Third and McCambridge in Madison. The second vehicle, a bicyclist LeBaron, driven by Linda Peacock of Troy, struck the bus when her car was hit from behind by a 1981 Ford Escort driven by Terry D. Fullerton, 43, of O'Fallon.

The bus driver, Virginia Robinson, 39, of Madison, student William Russell and Petras were taken to St. Elizabeth Medical Center in Granite City for observation.

"I don't know all the details, but I'm glad no one was seriously injured," Briggs said. "Yukeitha's a tough kid, but I want her healthy for our stretch drive."

She stopped by practice on Monday. She said everything was all right and I'm not concerned."

Madison runs in an indoor meet Saturday at Eastern Illinois University in Charleston. The Lady-Trojans return home for the first outdoor meet of the season Monday against Cahokia and Triad.

Both Gardner and Peacock are expected to miss both of those meets. She should return March 31 when Madison travels to Red Bud for a tri-meet.

"I'm just going to give her some time off," Briggs said. "Yukeitha's a tough kid, but I want her healthy for our stretch drive."

Blues and the Arena. You need to have the whole thing."

Wente, 39, is an unabashed promoter of auto racing in general and Tri-City Speedway in particular.

"Obviously, I'm biased," he said. "But Tri-City is the finest facility in the area and one of the top ten in the country — for what we do. It's certainly not the Daytona 500, but you would be surprised at the attention it gets from all around."

On tap for the 1992 season are a regular Saturday night program, beginning April 25, featuring USAC late models, IMCA modifieds and the pro stocks. Also on the schedule are three World of Outlaws events May 6, July 25 and Aug. 10. The All-Star Circuit of Champions comes in June 13 and Oct. 3, and area stock car star Ken Schrader will make an appearance June 27.

"We're generating a lot of interest," said Wente. "Even back in December and January when there was a lot of gloom and doom (over the economy), I was doing business."

Helping out is corporate sponsorship from Miller Brewing Co., Coca-Cola and Clark Oil. Clark stations will be offering 2-for-1 ticket discounts for the first two Saturday shows (April 25 and May 6). Free tickets will be offered on the 24-packs of Mello Yello soda.

"Tri-City is just so accessible," said Wente. "We get customers from Springfield, Ill., Wentzville (Mo.) and even St. Louis county. There are certain tracks which you read about or hear about and people from all over want to go there. That's what I want Tri-City to be like."

"I have a good relationship with the press here and around the country. I have a few who work for me who is a cameraman for ESPN. Getting one of our races televised someday would be a big boost."

The track's immediate goals include tipping the seating capacity from 4,000 to 6,000.

"That could be done by the end of the year," he said. "I have to talk to the zoning commission, but I also want to get some billboards up on the back straightaway. That would cut down on the wind and noise."

Wente would like to see crowds of 10,000, which is approximately double the average attendance in recent years.

"The interest here is greater than in most other parts of the country," said Wente, whose father (Bob Sr.) was a pro racer for many years and is now helping manage the track. "The Walkers (Mike and Rusty) and Ken Schrader got their start here."

And you have more crossover interest. In the south, it's mostly stock cars. At Indy, it's mostly sprint and that helps.

And people always recognize talent. It's like a concert. People know when Clint Black is there, and they know when Ernest Tubb is there."

But Wente is here — to stay.

"I'm here for the long haul," he said. "That's why I bought it. I'm happy about it and looking forward to the season."

strongest in the field events, particularly the weights. Along with Curry and Selph, sophomores Matt Lienhard and Nathan Owen will bolster the Warriors in the shot put and discus.

"The two sophomores have come along quickly and they're good, strong competitors," said McClain. "Bill will be all right in the shot and discus."

As for the remainder of the events, it's anyone's guess as to who will end up where. Several athletes will be pulling double duty.

Attempting to offset the loss of Brazee, who now jumps at SIU-Carbondale, will be juniors Eric Miner and Jim Clifts, and sophomore Jim Martinez. Filling in the sprinter spots will be senior Jeremy Weller, senior Mike Gruendel and junior David Taylor. Junior Bill Ribbing might also see some time.

Miner and his younger brother, Chip, a sophomore, will be the main hurdlers. In distance events, senior Brian Seitz and junior Jason Blomme will be the primary two-milers.

The teams to beat never seem to change. East St. Louis, Lincoln, Alton and both Belleville schools return a considerable amount of talent.

"We're down and everyone else seems to be up," said McClain. "It's going to be a long season and we'll take our knocks. But we have a chance to get some kids to state."
